

Everything you need to sell Zyneronix

This is the full partner-program kit: what you're selling, how much you earn and when, how to show the demo, the 90-second script, the most common objections and what you can't do. Keep it, it's yours.

What Zyneronix is and what you sell

Zyneronix puts an AI assistant on a local business's WhatsApp (clinics, vets, workshops, any appointment-based business) and also builds websites for local businesses. Two products, one visible price, no surprises for the client:

AI EMPLOYEE

€145 /mo

WhatsApp AI assistant: answers, qualifies and books 24/7 on the client's own WhatsApp API account.
€129/month for life for the first 10 clients (founder launch price).

ZYNERONIX WEBSITE

€69 /mo

A custom professional page, own domain, AI chat and 2 rounds of changes a month. Live in under 5 days.

BUSINESS PACK

€199 /mo

Website + AI Employee in one single payment. "Your new website and your WhatsApp answering 24/7 for €199/month. Free preview before you pay." The key argument for a prospect without a website. €179/month for life for the first 10.

All come with a minimum 3-month commitment (then month to month) and a 30-day refund if the client isn't happy. The price is always the same for everyone: you don't negotiate discounts.

The commission rule, with exact dates

01

€145 · tier 1

100% of the list price, when the client pays their 2nd month (€199 for the Business Pack).

02

€29/mo · tier 2

20% of the list price, with every payment from month 3 to month 12, for as long as they stay (€39.80 for the Business Pack).

03

Over €430/client

€145 + €29 × 10 months, for as long as the client stays in their first year (€597 for the Business Pack).

On the €145/month AI Employee that's up to €435 per client in their first year, even if the client entered at the founder price (€129/month): the commission is always calculated on the list price. On the Website (€69), up to €207. On the Business Pack (€199), up to €597 (€199 + €39.80/month). On multi-number packs for chains, each number generates its own commission.

Payouts on the 1st and the 16th of each month. If the client requests a refund within their 30 days, or never pays month 2, the commission is voided and no recurring tier starts; if they cancel later, the recurring tier stops from that point. Partner commission doesn't stack with the referral discount (25% × 12): whichever route was registered first applies. It's calculated only on what the client actually pays in Stripe.

How to generate your demo with your code

When you sign up you get a unique code and your link: zyneronix.com/s/YOURCODE. Anyone who comes through that link is attributed to you for 60 days, even if they take their time deciding.

TO SHOW THE BOT ON THE SPOT

zyneronix.com/en/try-your-bot/?ref=YOURCODE

Paste your prospect's own website and in 30 seconds you have a bot that already knows their business, to show them right there.

TO SHOW A SAMPLE WEBSITE

zyneronix.com/en/websites/?ref=YOURCODE

The 90-second script

(0-15 s) Open with the problem: "How many WhatsApp messages slip through when you're busy or closed?" Let them answer, don't answer for them.

(15-45 s) Show the demo: "Watch, I can set this up with any business's website in 30 seconds." Paste their own site into zyneronix.com/try-your-bot/ in front of them and let them ask the bot anything.

(45-70 s) The price, straight up: "This costs €145 a month, on your own WhatsApp number, with nothing technical for you to do. Sign up now and there's a founder launch price: €129 forever. If it's not for you in 30 days, you get a refund."

(70-90 s) Close: "I can leave you the link to try it at your own pace, or if you're sold, I'll help you sign up right now." Don't push past this.

The 8 most common objections, with answers

1. "It's expensive."

€145/month is less than one hour a week of front-desk pay, and it answers 24 hours a day. With the founder price (€129) it's even less, and there's a 30-day refund if it doesn't pay off.

2. "I already have a receptionist."

Good, the bot doesn't replace her: it answers when she's with a customer, has gone home, or it's the weekend. The moment she writes from WhatsApp, the bot goes quiet.

3. "My customers are older, they don't use this stuff."

The customer doesn't need to know there's a bot behind it: they just write on WhatsApp as always. If they'd rather talk to a person, the bot hands off.

4. "What if it gets something wrong?"

It only gives information the business itself has approved (prices, hours). If it doesn't know something, it says "the business will confirm that" and alerts by email; it never makes up an answer or gives medical advice.

5. "I don't have time to set it up."

Zyneronix sets it up with the business, in writing, in under 10 days from Meta's account verification. The client only sends their hours and prices once.

6. "What if my WhatsApp gets banned?"

We always use Meta's official API, with the account in the business's own name, never ours. There's a clear clause in the contract for that case, and the full summary is in the anti-ban one-pager.

7. "Why not just use ChatGPT for free?"

ChatGPT doesn't connect to the business's own verified WhatsApp account, doesn't actually book appointments, and doesn't alert the owner by email. It's a generic tool; this is an employee configured for that specific business.

8. "Why don't you have the bot yourselves?"

We did have one, on a test number, and we took it down. That number taught us WhatsApp's rules the hard way: a bot that sells and sends payment links inside the chat breaks Meta's rules, and it doesn't last. So today's product is the opposite: it runs on YOUR number and YOUR account, never sells or charges in the chat, says it's an AI from the first message and always hands over to a person. And we haven't put up a number of our own again because it would be an extra cost we don't need: the same bot already works on our website, which is where our clients come from, and that costs us less than paying for a WhatsApp number just to show it off. What you want to see is how it answers for YOU: paste your website here and you'll have it in a minute.

If they push back on "why don't you have the bot?"

If they still want to see one working on WhatsApp for real: "I'll show you one of our clients' [30 s video once client zero exists]. In the meantime, this test is the exact same AI we install on your number, nothing stripped out: same wording, same way of booking, same way of handing off to a person. The only thing that changes is the screen."

If they frame it as a risk ("what if my number gets shut down?"): "That's exactly why the bot runs on your account and not ours: the WhatsApp Business account is yours, verified in your name, and we only use Meta's official API through an authorized provider. It never sells or charges through the chat, it discloses it's an AI from the first message, and it always hands off to a person. We put that in writing before you pay: what we do, what Meta does, and what happens if there's a warning."

Four more variants, so it doesn't sound scripted:

- "We don't handle support over WhatsApp: our customers are businesses, and they come in through the website and through people like you. The bot is built for the business's own number, and that's where you'll see it: yours."
- "It would be like an electrician showing you the wiring in his own house. What matters is yours. Send me your website and you'll see it with your own data in a minute."
- "Having a 'sample' number would be misleading: it would answer with Zyneronix's own information. I'd rather you see it with your clinic."
- "The bot isn't a number you call, it's an employee that gets installed on your WhatsApp. The demo runs on your website; the installation runs on your number."

Never say, not even to a client: "we got banned" or "Meta shut down our number" as an opening line; nor "we can't have our own number" (sounds like a limitation: it's that we don't want one, it's yours); nor promise anything about Meta.

Anti-ban basics you should know

We always use Meta's official WhatsApp Business API (via 360dialog), never an unverified QR code. The account stays in the client's name, the app needs opening every 13 days, and coexistence accounts don't get the blue verified badge (a Meta limitation, not ours). The full detail, with the messaging tiers and the 3 questions you can use yourself with any skeptical prospect, is in the anti-ban one-pager \(1-page PDF\).

Requirements to get paid

- Be at least 18 years old.
- Be able to invoice: self-employed or a company, in any country.
- If you receive unemployment benefits, check first: rules vary by country and some benefits are incompatible with self-employed income; don't invoice until you've confirmed it.

What you CANNOT do

- Don't promise specific results (bookings, revenue, timelines) that Zyneronix hasn't confirmed in writing.
- Don't represent the company : you're not a Zyneronix employee, you don't sign on its behalf and you don't offer terms other than the published ones.
- Don't run cold email or bulk WhatsApp under your own legal responsibility without checking your country's rules first: if you prospect on your own, compliance is your responsibility, not Zyneronix's.
- Don't send your own payment links or charge the client directly: payment always goes through Zyneronix, which calculates and pays out your commission.
